ABOUT ME

Ghenwa noiré is a Beirut—Amsterdam based performer and multimedia installation practitioner.

They work on employing their body as a vocal and movement instrument, drawing from Lebanon's social structure.

noiré explores oral history, gossip, and nonverbal cues in their performances, accompanied by music to channel social and domestic structures. Investigating semantic satiation, they delve into how daily expressions expand their function by repetition.

Through their work they question how one can deal with daily life, mental struggles and routines with the notion of the self.
